“Coding is today ‘s language of creativity. All our children deserve a chance to become creator instead of consumers of computer science.” ~ Maria Kluwer

Summary:

What inspired me in the computer science field was that I’ve always been attracted to online forums and web development languages such as HTML, CSS and JavaScript. I was also motivated by the global technological change and impact in the society such that the communities have adapted to digitalisation. I prefer working effectively in a variety of contexts using languages, systems and environment to continue to learn and master new tools of the profession.
